He was assured by the corps of sympathizing reporters in waiting that it would end as the echoes of the great Exposition dis away in 1893, and with this assurance that he had not an eternity of letter-opening become him, the Mayor set about his daily morning task, some of the results of which follow:

Now that experiments with Dr. Brown-Sequard's new life elixir are being undertaken by so many physicians all over the country it is found that all the results reported are not equally successful.

In the majority of cases the condition of the patients treated with the elixir, has shown a marked improvement within a very short time, but in other cases the injection of the finid has been followed by very unfavorable symptoms.

" It may be that these variations in the results," said a well-known physican, "is due to the degree of care or carelessness in the preparation of the cluxir. Some doctors would prepare it much more carefully than others.

"The utmost caution should be used, for the presence of any septic matter in the fluid would surely result in serious injury to the patient, if it did not cause death,

The issue of this complication will be an interesting one. Mrs. Brandon is sadly broken up over the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune and longs to get back to Australia and friends, She says she can forgive but not forget her husband's cruelty.

HOT CHASE FOR A BURGLAR.

POLICEMAN PARKER'S EXCITING TIME WITH A MIDNIGHT VISITANT.

Policeman Fred Parker, of the Twentieth Precinct, had a lively experience with a burglar soon after midnight this morning.

While on his post a colored man notified the officer that a burglar was in the house 232 West Forty-first street. While the officer searched the house the burglar got out of a basement window to the yard and climbed the basement window to the yard and climbed the fence.

Parker told him to come down or he would shoot. The burglar calmly replied that he could shoot, too.
The policenan's pistol was empty, notwithstanding which, he climbed up on the fence to seize the man. The burglar ran slong the fence to No. 234, where he succeeded in opening a window and entered the house.
The dimates became much excited when they saw the officer rush in, and some one ran and opened the front basement door.
This was a chance for the thief and he took advantage of it. He ran through Forty-first street, and it was not until he reached Forty-second street and Seventh avenue that he was caught. The man had stolen nothing nor had he anything on him out an ordinary kuife.
The prisoner is Charles Miller, one of the Miller brothers, and an ex-convict. He formerly used to play the Health inspector dodge upon shopkeepers to rob their money drawers. Justice Ford held the prisoner in $1,000 ball for an attempt at burglary.
